

Fine Life Worthily Lived, is Eulogy To Mrs. Eaton

prayer, after which the Lord's Prayer was impressively chanted by the full choir of the church augmented by members of the Eaton Choral Society.

The first hymn was a favorite of Mrs. Eaton's:

"Abide with me, fast falls the eventide,

The darkness deepens, Lord with me abide."

Then Rev. Dr. Davies read the Scripture lesson—verses selected from various parts of the Bible—verses which Mrs. Eaton had found especially of comfort.

An anthem, "Souls of the Righteous," beautifully sung by the choir, preceded the minister's moving eulogy.

GREAT LIFE LIVED.

An even deeper hush fell over the assemblage as Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies uttered the first slowly spoken, simple words of his short address.

"The dominant note of this service should be one of gratitude," he said. And then, "A great life has been worthily lived."

The clear message from the lips of Mrs. Eaton's pastor seemed to re-echo in the stillness: "A great life has been worthily lived."

"Mrs. Eaton completed ninety-one years and retained her interests and faculties to the last," continued Dr. Davies. "She lived to see many of the great purposes of her early womanhood come to fruition. She made many friends, who were devoted to the end. There were shadows in her life, but they left her unembittered. There were days of prosperity through which she passed without harm. Altogether we may say, surely goodness and mercy have followed her all the days of her life.

HOME CHIEF INTEREST

"There was a time when Mrs. Eaton occupied a very prominent place in the commercial, social, philanthropic and religious life of our city. Her chief interest was in her home, where she bore the numerous responsibilities of wife and mother. But she also entered into many other important associations. During the days that her husband, by his creative genius, was fashioning one of the great institutions of our country, she was his most trusted confidant and counsellor. She was a woman of great sagacity and swift intuitive apprehension. For many years she was a director of the institution. In middle life, she took a profound interest in literature and art. Those who are able to judge tell us that, if she had had earlier opportunities, she would have been eminent in dramatic art. As it was, she initiated and sponsored many of the movements in our city which continue to-day."

"During the last ten years I have known her intimately. She spent them sabbatically, as if on the shore of another world, interested in this world, but influenced by that other. The qualities which came to maturity in her practical life remained in evidence through the waiting years."

"She was a woman of profound sincerity, deep cordiality, vitally interested in the well-being of others, and all these qualities arose out of her simple living faith in her Saviour."

GRANDSONS PALLBEARERS.

Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, who was asked to assist Dr. Davies in conducting the service because of his personal friendship for Mrs. Eaton, offered an impressive prayer. "Lead Kindly Light," another loved hymn was sung. The Benediction was pronounced. The solemn strains of Chopin's funeral march came from the organ, played by the church organist, T. J. Crawford.

And so from the building in which she had so often worshipped was borne Margaret Wilson Eaton.

The pall-bearers were her grandsons—John David Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Henry J. Burden, Eaton Burden and Noel Eaton—and Col. William Bishop, V.C., Harry Coulson and George Leishman.

The honorary pall-bearers were: Sir William Mulock, Premier George S. Henry, E. R. Wood; Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto; Alfred Rogers, C. L. Burton, Dr. J. E. Jenner, of Kingsville, John Northway, R. S. McLaughlin, of Oshawa; William Inglis, C. B. McNaught, Dr. William Goldie, C. A. Bogert, Col. F. H. Deacon, Col. Harry McGee, J. J. Vaughan S. Wilson, of Winnipeg, T. A. McCrea, D. E. Startup, Charles Booths, C. N. Mills, George T. Wolfe, and J. S. McCaughey.

CHIEF MOURNERS.

The chief mourners were Col. W. P. Eaton, George Beattie, C. E. Burden, G. D. Bishop, Col. R. Y. Eaton, J. J. Eaton, Paul Bishop and W. H. Abbott.

The chief mourners were Col. W. F. Eaton, George Beattie C. E. Burden, C. D. Bishop, Col. R. Y. Eaton, J. J. Eaton, Paul Bishop and W. H. Abbott.

From the church the funeral procession went west on St. Clair ave. to Russell Hill road, north to Heath st., east on Heath st. to Yonge st., and north to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, where entombment followed in the Eaton mausoleum.

There was no public viewing of the remains, but an hour before the service this afternoon intimate friends and employes of the Eaton store filed past the casket to look for the last time at her serene face.

In the quiet of the Oakville home which she loved, members of the family said their farewells in a private service conducted at eleven a.m. by Rev. Dr. Davies, assisted by Rev. Canon Woodcock.

Present were her son, Col. William Eaton, of Oakville; her daughters, Mrs. C. E. Burden and Mrs. Josephine Burnside; her grandchildren, and others of the immediate family.

FLOWERS BANK CHANCEL.

Expressing in their fragrant beauty the esteem and respectful affection in which Mrs. Eaton was held by the country's greatest institutions, by public bodies and by individuals, both high and low in station, wreaths and sheafs of flowers banked the spacious chancel. It seemed as if a new wall of exquisite color had been built.

Besides floral tributes from relatives and friends were hundreds from organizations, among whom were:

Margaret Wilson Beattie, Timothy Eaton, founder of the Eaton Company, died at day night. The end had been expected for several hours and passed away peacefully.

Exactly one week after celebrated her ninety-first birthday, good health for her years, she contracted pneumonia suddenly Wednesday, the illness being very serious from the beginning of her advanced age. On morning doctors told the family that the end might come at any minute, and described it as "very precarious."

The entire Eaton establishment in Toronto will be closed all day, when the funeral will be held.

Death came to this beloved her country home, "Raymar," fronts the Toronto-Hamilton Highway just within the town of Oakville. grounds fringe Lake Ontario, a few hospitable houses a few miles away. The doorway at "Raymar," in oak, is an inscription which typifies the simple, friendly spirit that Mrs. Eaton's: "The lintel low enough to keep the pamp and pride, The threshold high enough to t deceit aside, The door band strong enough to repel robbers to defend This door will open at a touch to welcome every friend."

Her city home was at 182 Yonge Street, and there was "Raven scrag" on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka where Mrs. Eaton loved to spend part of each year.

WED AT ST. MARY'S

Mrs. Timothy Eaton, whose maiden name was Margaret Wilson Beattie, was born in Toronto on March 8th, 1842. Her parents, Joseph Beattie, a general merchant, and Elizabeth (Tilt) Beattie, lived near the corner of Church and Adelaide streets, but soon after this date moved to Woodstock. There Margaret Beattie was educated and grew to womanhood. Even as a school girl she revealed qualities of capability, originality and energy, and so developed a personality of charm and distinction. Whatever she undertook she did well. She pursued the study of music with diligence, she had rare taste in dress,

Church Packed, Hundreds Stand - Aged Widow Rests Beside Husband

A gracious, beautiful life of 91 years ended, Mrs. Timothy Eaton rests beside her husband. To that place of peace, in the sombre mausoleum of the great Eaton family in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, she was borne by hands of those she loved, while thousands who knew her intimately or only through her good works lined the streets along which the cortege passed.

"Who are all these people?" said a man outside Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, where thousands who could not gain admission quietly stood in the bleak wind all through the service. "I know the dignitaries—but who are all these?" They were people of the city of Toronto—old people, who can look back to the beginnings of the Eaton store, when Timothy Eaton and his wife, Margaret, strove side by side to make it live; young people, to whom the name of Mrs. Timothy Eaton represented something fine and lovely, known many men—but more women.

GOOD AND BEAUTIFUL LIFE.

Yet it could not be called a gathering of mourners. Tears were not shed, for she had lived a full life. As Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies told the still congregation, Mrs. Eaton had been waiting happily for a decade on the threshold of another life, and when she had stepped softly and sweetly. So he bade them to feel only "thanksgiving for the gift of a very good and beautiful life, beautifully lived."

An hour before the service the streets for a block on all sides of the church were thickly studded with people, some of whom had already given up hope of entering, for the walk to the main entrance was packed with waiting men and women. Meanwhile, scores of Mrs. Eaton's personal friends and employees of the store had passed to look upon her face before the casket was closed, and a covering of lilies of the valley, interwoven with purple violets, placed over it.

With the section reserved for Eaton employees filled, the doors were opened to admit the general public, but it was only a few minutes before every foot of space was taken up. Two or three hundred were allowed to stand at the back of the church.

HUNDREDS IN CEMETERY

Then the honorary pall-bearers, including Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Herbert Bruce, Sir William Mulock, George S. Henry, and Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody, took their places, followed by the active pall-bearers—five of Mrs. Eaton's grandsons, and Col. W. A. Bishop, V.C., Harry Coulson and George Leisham. The choir and purple-robed, entered the chancel, and Dr. Davies began the impressive service with a simple prayer.

There was hardly a rustle in the church until the last triumphant strains of Chopin's funeral march died away. Then the casket was carried slowly down the centre aisle as the tolling of the church bell began.

Outside, the chilled crowds stood with heads bowed. The streets were lined as the procession proceeded to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and there hundreds of citizens also stood on the wind-swept, rain-soaked ground to pay their last respects. Only the men of the family and the pall-bearers entered the mausoleum. Alderman James W.

carried until the last triumphant strains of Chopin's funeral march died away. Then the casket was carried slowly down the centre aisle as the tolling of the church bell began.

Outside, the chilled crowds stood with heads bowed. The streets were lined as the procession proceeded to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and there hundreds of citizens also stood on the wind-swept, rain-soaked ground to pay their last respects. Only the men of the family and the pall-bearers entered the mausoleum for the brief committal service.

Such was Toronto's tribute to one "who had finished her course, and brought it to perfect order."

BRIEF ILLNESS IS FATAL TO MRS. TIMOTHY EATON, STORE FOUNDER'S WIDOW

MRS. TIMOTHY EATON.

Death Comes Few Days After 91st Birthday to Dowager of Vast Retail Enterprise—Renowned for Her Welfare Activities—Funeral on Tuesday.

Mrs. Timothy Eaton, widow of the founder of the vast commercial interests which bear his name, died Saturday night following a brief illness at her Oakville residence, "Raymar."

Death came quietly to the white-haired dowager of the Eaton enterprises. On March 8 she had celebrated her 91st birthday. Last Wednesday she contracted pneumonia. Early Friday her condition became grave and Saturday she sank rapidly while the greatest medical skill sought to aid life retain its weakening grasp.

She died with members of her family around her. With her passing, the last link with the early days which saw Timothy Eaton's modest yet revolutionary, store grow into the greatest chain of departmental retail establishments also passed. And until the very last she had continued consulted her on every important move in the business and set a high value upon her judgment. It was her approval that decided him to come to Toronto in 1869 and establish the business that has grown to such mighty proportions. It was her enthusiasm for shorter hours that encouraged him to pioneer the policy of early closing in the days when stores generally remained open until late every evening.

Knew Employees.

Her knowledge of the store was wonderfully complete; every employee in the early days was her friend, and many of them were frequent guests at her table. Even when the staff was numbered by hundreds she provided an annual entertainment for all, in association with her husband, and if sickness came to any, her personal interest and help were assured. Mrs. Timothy Eaton was the first "Welfare Department" of the institution, and the employees recognized her sym-

Mrs. Timothy Eaton, widow of the founder of the vast commercial interests which bear his name, died Saturday night following a brief illness at her Oakville residence, "Raymar."

Death came quietly to the white-haired dowager of the Eaton enterprises. On March 8 she had celebrated her 91st birthday. Last Wednesday she contracted pneumonia. Early Friday her condition became grave and Saturday she sank rapidly while the greatest medical skill sought to aid life retain its weakening grasp.

She died with members of her family around her. With her passing, the last link with the early days which saw Timothy Eaton's modest, yet revolutionary, store grow into the greatest chain of departmental retail establishments also passed. And until the very last she had continued to take a close interest in the "store."

Advancing years had not been so great a factor as human inability to know every employe, to visit with each of them, to have them visit her. Her gracious manner, her possession of all the womanly graces of half a century ago, had contributed to the success which attended her husband's business ventures. Her counsel had been conceived in wisdom and feminine intuition which reflected in rare degree its value to her hard-working, far-seeing husband when he cast his fortune in a decision to come to Toronto and open a store.

And outside the interest which she held for the growing store, she had been a mother to eight children, had taken an active part in the artistic life of her country, and had still found time to perform acts of welfare, mostly unheralded, which will leave her influence upon Toronto felt for many years.

The funeral service will be held at Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, St. Clair Avenue west, on Tuesday at 3 p.m. Interment will be made at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The T. Eaton Company store will be closed all day Tuesday.

Was Able Housewife.

Mrs. Eaton, whose maiden name was Margaret Wilson Beattie, was born in Toronto on March 8, 1842. Her parents, Joseph Beattie, a general merchant, and Elizabeth (Tilt) Beattie, lived near the corner of Church and Adelaide Streets, but soon after this date moved to Woodstock. There Margaret Beattie was educated and grew to womanhood. Even as a school girl she revealed qualities of capability, originality and energy, and so developed a personality of charm and distinction. Whatever she undertook she did well. She pursued the study of music with diligence, she had rare taste in dress, she rode superbly, and her housewifely ability received recognition in prizes won at the Fall Fairs for breadmaking and fancy-work.

In 1861, while visiting a friend at St. Marys, she met a young Irish merchant, Timothy Eaton, and within a twelve-month, they were married. For seven years they lived and worked in the pretty Western Ontario town and here her two elder children were born. Although Mrs. Eaton's prime interest was in homemaking arts, she was the active helpmeet of her husband in every way. Mr. Eaton confessed to have cherished in girlhood secret longings to be an actress. Perhaps because of this ambition, her mind was a rich storehouse of the best poetry, and she had the gift of apt and humorous quotation which made her a gracious conversationalist and a stimulating companion.

Patron of the Arts.

Mrs. Eaton was always a lover of art and a generous patron of the artists. Recently she made a notable contribution to the Art Gallery of Toronto in the form of a sculpture in marble by the famous Serbian sculptor, Ivan Mestrovic, entitled "Mother at Prayer."

Hospitality was her ruling passion. She had carved over the door of her Oakville residence Van Dyke's lines:

"The lintel low enough to keep out
pomp and pride,
The threshold high enough to turn deceit aside;
The door-bands strong enough from robbers to defend,
The door will open at a touch to every friend."

At the age of 78, 13 years ago, she joyously accompanied her son, the late Sir John Eaton, in an airplane flight over the Muskoka lakes. The pilot on this trip was her granddaughter's husband, Col. William Bishop, V.C., the renowned war ace.

"Mother," said Sir John after the landing, "I never was so proud of you as at this moment—seventy-eight and a good sport."

Eagerly entering into all Sir John's philanthropic, charitable and patriotic activities, co-operating with him in the building of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, and the Surgical Wing of the General Hospital, intelligent, resolute, merry and perpetually young, she commanded the affection of all. Her donations to churches, hospitals, and many charitable institutions have earned for her the gratitude of thousands. She was a notable mother and a woman of high distinction.

Mrs. Eaton's children were Edward Young, deceased; Josephine (Mrs. Burnside), Margaret (Mrs. C. E. Burden), both of Toronto; two sons who died in infancy; George, who was drowned in boyhood; Col. William Fletcher Eaton, of Oakville, and the late Sir John Craig Eaton, whose career as president of the T. Eaton Company was so striking. She had 16 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren, and is survived by a sister, Mrs. C. F. Bishop, and a brother, Mr. George Battie.

SIMPLICITY TO MARK MRS. EATON'S FUNERAL

Private Service for Family to Precede Public Ceremony.

MEMORIAL CHURCH

Surrounded by members of her family, other near relatives, old personal friends, veterans on the staff of the great business enterprise she helped to create, executive officers and departmental managers, the funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Wilson Beattie Eaton, wife of the late Timothy Eaton, will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, St. Clair Avenue west.

The casket with her remains which have been resting in her Summer home, "Raymar," at Oakville, will be brought to the city two hours previous to the public service. The officiating clergy will be, Rev. Dr. Trevor H. Davies, her pastor, and Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, formerly of St Jude's Anglican Church, Oakville who was numbered among the intimate friends of Mrs. Eaton. The service is to be as simple as possible in accordance with her expressed wishes nor is there to be any lying in state or viewing of the remains at the church.

Early this morning there will be a private service for the family at "Raymar" at which all members, except Lady Eaton, who is in Europe will be present. Pallbearers, all young members of the family, will be John David Eaton, Timothy Eaton, Harry Burden, Eaton Burden, Colonel W. A. Bishop, V.C.; Noel Eaton, Harry Coulson and George Leishman. Entombment will be in the Eaton Mausoleum in Mount Pleasant cemetery.
